

ABSTRACT

A detector is disposed on the passive side of a laser to detect photon leakage through the passive side mirror and measure a current created in the detector via a Schottkey contact.